Dear Mr. Fairbanks,

Much as I appreciate people taking the time to write me, I just cannot take the time from the very long working day I put in to read 16 closely-written pages of very small writing. When I can, I will read your letter dated 18 November and mailed the 26th. However, if there is anything urgent in it, please send me a brief note that I'll be able to read rapidly.

I do hope you can understand this. Not only do I not have the time, with all the work I am into, but my eyes also just will not take that kind of concentrated fine use.

Sincerely
